Mr. M. Twomey's comments re accounts:

Arising out of the passing of the cheques, Mr. M. Twomey raised the question - what are the Trustees responsibilities, or are they liable for the debts of the Society, in the case of default, or are the members of the Society, in general, responsible? The Secretary stated that there was no rule laid down in connection with these Trustees, and he was not in a position to reply to the question raised by Mr. Twomey, but that his own opinion was that there was no liability whatever on the members of the Society in the case of debts incurred by the Society.
